1. The pokémon national pokédex number, its name and category, respectively.
2. The pokémon typing.
3. To which this pokémon evolves to and its condition. Sometimes can be found listed below instead.
4. What is this pokémon signature stat - the main one being with “++” and the secondary being with “+”. Some pokémon don't have any signature stat.
5. Pokémon general information, being respectively:
 - Habitat: Where this pokémon can be found in the wild.
 - Diet: What this pokémon need to eat or do to survive, being one of the following:
 - ◇ Herbivore: These pokémon can eat plants or plant-like pokémon;
 - ◇ Carnivore: These pokémon can eat other pokémon, usually animal-like pokémon. These pokémon can also eat other pokémon eggs as a food source;
 - ◇ Omnivore: These pokémon can eat as both herbivore and carnivore;
 - ◇ Quidvore: These pokémon can eat both organic and inorganic matter;
 - ◇ Phototroph: These pokémon do photosynthesis or is capable of gaining energy through entering in contact with light;
 - ◇ Saprophytic: These pokémon can eat dead plant or pokémon material, being a decomposer of the pokémon world;
 - ◇ Terravore: These pokémon can eat rock and minerals or mineral-like pokémon;
 - ◇ Glacievore: These pokémon have water and ice as a food source. These pokémon can also eat ice or water-like pokémon;
 - ◇ Animuvore: These pokémon can consume emotions to gain energy. Some pokémon consume bad emotions, usually ghost types, while other can consume good emotions;
 - ◇ Vitaevore: These pokémon needs to sap the life force of other living beings to gain energy;
 - ◇ Ergovore: These pokémon can consume electricity to gain energy;
 - ◇ Some pokémon doesn't have anything in this field — that means that this pokémon doesn't need to eat anything to live.

- Rarity: How common is it to encounter that pokémon in their habitat. It doesn't take into account how rare is this pokémon habitat;
- Gender Ratio: How likely it's to encounter a female or male pokémon of that species. Some pokémon doesn't have any information on this field, this mean that this pokémon species is genderless;
- Egg group: What egg group this pokémon is part of — that means with what pokémon can it reproduce with;
- Egg hatch time: How long it takes an egg of this species to hatch. A cycle equals 2 Complete Time Blocks.

6. What size your pokémon have and how heavy it is. These information are the following:

- Size:
 - ◇ Tiny: Any size of 0.3m or below. These pokémon can pass through Medium or above pokémon without any penalty. They can also pass through Large or above pokémon of the opponent team without any penalty as well.
 - ◇ Small: Any size between 0.3m and 0.6m. These pokémon can pass through Large or above pokémon without any penalty. They can also pass through Huge or above pokémon of the opponent team without any penalty as well.

 - ◇ L: Any weight between 50kg and 99kg;
 - ◇ XL: Any weight between 100kg and 199kg;
 - ◇ XXL: Any weight above 199kg.

7. The pokémon sub-archetype of that archetype. More information in X;

8. The pokémon's possible archetypes. More information in X;

9. The pokémon Natural coverage of that archetype — that says what moves it can learn with a tier up to their tier. More information in X;

- Some coverage may be a combination of a type and some letters in parenthesis. This means that the pokémon of that species and archetype can't learn any move of that type: it must be of one of the described categories, that being "Ph" for Physical, "St" for Status and "Sp" for Special. If the type doesn't have any parenthesis besides it, it means that this coverage gives access to all moves of that type.

10. The pokémon standard coverage of that archetype — that says what moves it can learn with at least a tier lower than itself. More information in X;
11. The pokémon Signature — that can be either a Move or a Trait.
- If it is a move, the following information are always present:
 - ◇ In the first line, there is the move's name with the category and type is in parenthesis, beside the name ("Ph" for Physical, "St" for Status and "Sp" for Special);
 - ◇ In the second line, there is Damage, for the Damage category, and CD, for Cooldown;
 - ◇ The third line says first the targeting and then the action required or the move's tags;
 - If there isn't an action listed, then it costs a Standard action;
 - If there isn't a tag listed, then the move doesn't have any tags;
 - ◇ Below the third line is the effect of the signature move;
 - Some Signature Moves and Traits have an effect after the descriptor "Underdog:". This effect is only activated once the pokémon of that species acquire the trait Underdog Potential.
 - Some effects, like the Concentrate Energy (technique), scales with the move's tier. For Signature moves, consider as the following:
 - ◇ Tier I for the 1st stage its evolution line;
 - ◇ Tier II for the 2nd stage of a 3-stages evolution line;
 - ◇ Tier III for the 2nd stage of a 2-stages evolution line or 1-stage evolution line;
 - ◇ Tier IV for the 3rd stage of its evolution line;
 - ◇ Tier V for legendaries and mythicals;
 - Underdog Potential and Lived Life traits also increase the pokémon's signature move considered tier;
 - Any additional trait acquired by your pokémon's signature trait is considered as if it were acquired prior to their tier I trait.
- Some Pokémon may have a textbox below its usual with the "Gimmick:" descriptor. This means that this pokémon has an additional, unique mechanic that changes that affects both archetypes.

#440 Happiny - The Playhouse Pokémon

Normal Type

Normal Type		Special
		Brawler	Guardian
	Evolves to Chansey at Friendship 3
	Signature Stat:	++HP	N: Fighting, Psychic
	Habitat:	Meadow, Forest	S: Voice
	Diet:	Herbivore	N: Healing, Psychic
Size: Small	Rarity:	Rare	S: Fairy
	Gender Ratio:	100% Female	Treasured Stone
	Egg group:	Undiscovered	While Happiny holds any kind of Tumblestone, they take 10% less damage (before defenses, critical hit and effectiveness).
	Egg hatch time:	8 Cycles	Underdog: The damage reduction is increased to 25%. Additionally, while Happiny holds any kind of Tumblestone, when they target an ally with a move, they receive the same damage reduction until the end of their next turn.
Weight: S		Paradoxical Strength
		Happiny's Physical moves can roll to hit using their Special Attack instead. Additionally, when a pokémon loses Stamina through Happiny's moves, they lose X additional Stamina, where X is equal to their Level.
		Underdog: When they trigger this trait, if the damage or Stamina lost was based on Happiny's Level or Attack, X is equal to 6 x their level.

Gimmick: Soft Nurse

Happiny has extremely soft skin and low strength. Thanks to that, Happiny's stats work differently than usual. "Stats raised via any effect" includes, but not exclusively: stats via level up, Signature Stat, stat stages, training stats, class features, feats, move's effects, trait's effects and held item's effects.

- > Whenever they would have your Attack stat raised via any effect outside of battle, they instead gain that same amount in HP;
- > They gain twice their Defense, before temporary effects such as stat stages, as maximum Stamina;
- > When they're making a damage reduction roll against a Physical move, they treat the move as 2 categories below. They cannot roll to reduce damage from Physical moves with d2 or lower damage category.

	Rarity:	Rare	S: Artificial, Slashing
Size:	Medium	Gender Ratio:	50/50
Weight:	XS	Egg group:	Mineral
		Egg hatch time:	4 Cycles
		Reckless Wielding Doublade can spend their Quick action to give their next Melee move "Margin of Success +1", however, until the start of their next turn, opponent's Ranged or Melee moves targeting them gain the same effect. Underdog: When using this trait, they can choose to additionally give the triggering move "Margin of Success +1, for every 2 leftover successes, roll 1 additional damage die". If they did so, until the start of their next turn, they're weak 1 step further to every type.
		Balanced Strategy After Doublade uses a Protection tagged move, their next move until the end of their next turn receives a bonus of +1 to hit. Underdog: After Doublade uses a damaging move, they gain 1 Blade counter, which can stack up to 2. At any moment, they can spend a Free action and 2 Blade counters to reduce the cooldown of one of their Protection tagged moves by 1.

Evolution: Evolves to Aegislash in contact with a Dusk Stone.

	Habitat:	Beach, Ocean	S: Drama, Fighting (Ph)
	Diet:	Carnivore	N: Whipping
	Rarity:	Uncommon	S: Slashing, Flying (Ph)
Size:	Small	Flashing Spots When Inkay uses Flash (move), it gains "25% Confusion". Underdog: They can spend their Quick action to give your next Flash "50% Confusion" instead.	Topsy-Turvy (St Dark) Damage: - CD: 2 Ranged 5m Reverse all stat stages of the target, making positive stat stages negative and vice versa. Underdog: If the user is the target, Inkay can use this move as a Quick action instead.
Weight:	XS
	Egg group:	Water 1/Water 2
	Egg hatch time:	4 Cycles

Topsy-Turvy: If the target has a non-0 base stat stage, take the difference between its current stage and its base stat stage, then you reverse it and finally add it back to the pokémon. For example, take a pokémon with a base stat stage +1 and a current stat stage of +3. First, we take the difference in them, which results in +2 (3 - 1 = 2), After that, we reverse it to -2 and then apply the base stat stage again, resulting in -1 (+1 - 2).
